Overview

A committing 7,000 m expedition between giants

Baruntse sits in a remote glacial basin ringed by Everest, Lhotse and Makalu - a serious, fixed-rope 7,000 m expedition for climbers ready to step up.

Baruntse (7,162 m) is one of Nepal's classic 7000m objectives, climbed from a base camp in the Hunku basin with a careful acclimatisation plan and a strong local climbing crew.

We run it as a fully guided expedition - fixed lines on the technical ground, experienced Sherpa support and generous summit windows - so you can focus on the climb itself.

Highlights

- Remote Hunku basin
- Classic south-east ridge
- Surrounded by 8,000ers
- True expedition logistics
