Overview

A shapely pyramid above the Marsyangdi valley

A classic Annapurna-region trekking peak, Pisang is a clean pyramid of snow and rock climbed from a scenic high camp - a step up from the gentlest 6,000ers with a short, satisfying summit ridge.

Pisang Peak (6,091 m) is one of Nepal's classic 6000m objectives, climbed from a base camp in the Annapurna with a careful acclimatisation plan and a strong local climbing crew.

We run it as a fully guided expedition - fixed lines on the technical ground, experienced Sherpa support and generous summit windows - so you can focus on the climb itself.

Highlights

- Elegant pyramid summit
- Annapurna Circuit approach
- Snow slope & short ridge
- Great acclimatisation climb
